Topic Outline

The Banking Executive Accountability Regime (BEAR) is designed to make senior executives in banks more accountable for the actions and outcomes of their organisation. The objective is to among other things help restore public trust in banks. Whilst the 1 July 2019 deadline for medium and small ADIs to comply may seem distant – based on lessons that have surfaced by larger ADIs who needed to comply earlier this year, there is actually quite a bit of work that needs to be done sooner rather than later. Indeed, it presents a significant impact in context of resource, time and financial commitment to get it right. Shaun McGushin, Director for Ash St. Advisory will be providing an overview of BEAR, the obligations and how the remaining ADIs can best prepare for this regime that comes into effect in just under 10 months.

Who is this for?

Mutual Executives and Managers with a need to better understand the impact of BEAR.
